Railway from Coast to Red Deer Discussed.

ALBERTA CENTRAL WILL BE BUILT THIS YEAR.

Montreal, March 19.—Shaughnessy stated today that he had no information to make public regarding the announcement from the west that the C. P. R. had acquired interests in the Alberta
Central railway.

It is now thought the C. P. R. will build a line running from Vancouver to the south side of Thompson river, thence through the Yellowhead pass on to Red Deer. The line along Thompson river is said to be already surveyed.

Ottawa, March 21.—Messrs.
Neilly, Martin, Cash, Rutan and Clarke, members of the house of commons, and Senator T. O.

Davis, attended before the minister of railways today, to express their views as to the route maps submitted by a number of railway companies. Mr. Knowles, M.P., was absent, but sent a letter expressing his views.

John T. Moore (President), J.
Grant (chief engineer), and Alexander Smith (solicitor) appeared on behalf of the Alberta Central Railway company, and without any dissent the route of the company from Red Deer westward to Rocky Mountain House was approved. As plans, profiles and a book of references have been prepared, it is expected the line will be constructed by December of the present year.

The Legislature.

After considerable discussion last week, the motion referring the Alberta and Great Waterways railway question to a commission for investigation, consisting of Judges Scott, Harvey and Beak, passed the house, and after the estimate, amounting to about a million and half dollars, were passed, the house adjourned to May 25th to receive the commissioners' report.

Police Court.

Saturday afternoon E. Bowen was up before Justice Mellor, charged with refusing to pay wages to a man named Warren Addey. The defence proved the man was not fit to work and was asked to leave the farm. The case was dismissed.

Dr. McCraith, veterinary surgeon, laid a complaint against Dr.
McEwen for practising without a license. J. L. Crawford for the plaintiff and J. C. Moore for the defence. The case was tried before Justice Mellor and Carswell.
Judgment for plaintiff by consent. Dr. McEwen paid his fee to the Alberta Veterinary Association and had a permit to January last to practice. At that time he was in Ontario owing to the illness of his father. On his return he applied for a special examination and was granted same at Lacombe, but the result was not yet known. He expects to hear the result any day.

Dr. McEwen is a duly qualified veterinary surgeon but cannot practise in Alberta until he has passed an examination here.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Proof Files Were Stripped

The Rutherford administration still stands to office on the slim majority of three in the legislature.

Tuesday last another test of strength was made on Boyle's resolution of censure on the stripped Great Waterways files.

The vote was 17 to 20, and 17 to 20 it looks as if the government on every division that comes up, until the business of the session is worried through, in six weeks or six months as the case may be. The 17 fighting, arguing, never despairing insurgents will continue to fight and argue, the 20 silent, stubborn government voters will continue to be unmoved, and the much harassed first minister will continue to tell the house with assumed complacency that "on two occasions the people of this grand province have voted confidence in his government, and he sees no reason."

For three hours Tuesday afternoon, the government's solid 20 voters listened to the most bitter arraignment of the administration. They saw Boyle pick to pieces the Great Waterways files, and point to undeniable facts, missing links in the incomplete chain of correspondence that told the story of the negotiations between the government and the railway promoters. They listened to the biting sarcasms of Smith, who held up to contempt the government who would carry on the humiliating proceedings this government had done in the name of Liberalism. They saw beneath Bennett's fierce denunciation of the administration, who gave the lie in thundering tones, to the premier's statement that all the papers and documents were on the table.

They heard the attorney-general dismiss the whole question with the one statement that the royal commission would investigate everything. They listened to Puffer tell them that it was with an easy conscience that he voted for the government on a question on which he was incompetent to judge.

Boyle handled his case well when he came to speak to his motion. He took up the files in detail, and his arguments were undeniable and his proofs almost absolute. There were letters missing, which were referred to in letters on the files. He showed particularly where the agreement between Clarke and Morgan concerning the purchase of the bonds was missing. Bennett in stinging language, gave the lie to the premier's statement that all the documents were down. "It is false," shouted Bennett, "it is as false as hell," and amid the dead silence that fell, the speaker called his order. The leader of the opposition slipped neatly out of it by stating that his expression was a quotation from the immortal Shakespeare.

MR. BOYLE SPEAKS.

Mr. Boyle proceeded to speak on his motion of censure. He said it was a question which concerned the privileges of the house. "It goes to the foundation principles of responsible government," he said, "and if the house is not prepared to take a stand for its rights, then there is no cause that can grant us any assistance. We are the highest court of appeal. It is for the house to say whether the country is to stand for the stripping of documents from files brought down at the command of the house."

It is a difficult matter for anyone to remove documents from a file without leaving their imprint, and I propose to show that the person who stripped the files left their imprint most indelibly. "There were certain rules of practice observed," said Mr. Boyle, "in handling correspondence. It was generally customary that when letters had been received by a department, replies were immediately dictated and despatched. Another rule was that when telegrams had been despatched there were always confirming letters following up. He quoted a letter from the files of the Deputy Attorney General Woods, dated October 26th, 1908, in which Minty said he was enclosing a draft copy of the proposed mortgage. The draft mortgage, he said, was not on the file. If it had been, it might have given the house some valuable information, but if the house had the letter of the deputy attorney general acknowledging Minty's letter, there might be still more valuable information. The letter would probably explain why the usual custom had not been followed in not including in the legislation brought down in 1909, the draft agreement and mortgage, as had been done by all other governments, in similar cases.

Another letter, dated November 16, from Minty to Woods, spoke of enclosing a bundle of telegrams, which Minty considered Woods might want for purposes of record. "Where," asked

Mr. Boyle, "are these telegrams? To whom were they addressed? How many were there? Why was thought advisable to remove them from the information of the house? There is no letter here acknowledging the receipt of these telegrams. Where is that letter?—Was there something in that letter the house must not know?"

MORE DOCUMENTS MISSING.

Another letter, of March 20, 1909, from Minty to Woods, acknowledged enclosed a 20 guarantee. Where was Wood's letter enclosing the documents? This was shortly after the acts passed. Perhaps this letter might have explained how the legislation got through the house.

Another letter from Minty to Woods, dated December 10, 1909, spoke of securing a license of the Great West Construction Company, operated in Alberta. He presumed that Mr. Woods could not intelligently answer this letter without more correspondence. But where was it?

Woods and J. W. McLeod, deputy treasurer, carried the documents to New York. Where was their letter of instruction? Surely the two men could not be allowed to walk out of the province with these bonds without furnishing a receipt for them. But where was that receipt?

Turning to the deputy treasurer's file, Mr. Boyle produced a letter from McLeod, which was written from New York to Elliott, of the attorney general's department, asking him to execute an order in council, as per instructions forwarded to Trowbridge. But where was the letter to Trowbridge?

There was another letter written to Morgan and Company, enclosing various documents, including the contract between Morgan and Clarke, of the Great Waterways, relating to the sale of the bonds. Where was that agreement? A copy of that agreement ought to be on the files of both the deputy attorney general and the deputy treasurer.

What protection did the province have against any crooked work by Clarke, if they only had his word for it that this agreement was alright? The house had not seen this agreement. Elliott had seen it, the people would not be asking who got the rake-off on the sale of the bonds.

Did the government think they could use agreements in conducting their business and not let the legislature see them? That is what they had been doing up to the present moment.

"I do not know of anything so dangerous to the welfare of the public and the sort of thing," concluded Mr. Boyle. His motion was seconded by Riley, Gleichen.

CROSS OFFERS NO EXPLANATION.

The attorney general satisfied himself with merely stating that Mr. Boyle's resolution would be covered by the premier's resolution for a royal commission. He said the commission would have full power to call for all documents. When asked by Bennett if he would agree to changing the premier's resolution to make it less doubtful that it would inquire into the matter, the attorney general said he would, but thought it included the matter as it now stood.

MR. P. SMITH IS BITTER.

Smith, Camrose, held up to ridicule in bitter terms, the attitude of the administration, which claimed to represent Liberalism in its truest sense. He pictured Gladstone and other great Liberals at leaders in similar positions, to show the absurd and disgraceful position the Alberta government was now in. He said he had listened with a great deal of surprise to the attorney general. This was a matter for too great importance to be dismissed in summary manner. This was a question which the house was quite capable of dealing with; it was not necessary to have a commission. The members knew the files were not complete. The things were not there.

I ask the attorney general about one particular document, the agreement between Clarke and the Morges; it is in the files. It is a document the whole country is asking about; one which would settle this question at once and condemn the government. It is the document on which hinges the question as to whether the proceeds from the sale of the bonds were turned over to the government.

PRESENT SESSION A COMIC OPERA.

"No man could possibly go through those files without missing letters. I have sometimes wondered during the time we have been conducting this comic opera, how this thing would strike the men who have given to the world the gospel of Liberalism. This has been done in the name of Liberalism. I would like to know what Mr. Gladstone or any of his colleagues would have said if asked for their opinion of the humiliating proceedings we have been witnessing.

"How can the government ask the support of any member of the house this afternoon on this motion of censure of the government for stripping the files, when they know the files are wrong."

"There is only one ground on which the government is asking the support of members on this question, and that is that they claim to stand for Liberalism, and ask them to be true to their party. The only other ground they could have, is that they prove the situation referred to by the resolution does not exist."

Smith went on to say that he had only to read the files of the Toronto Globe, that staunch Liberal organ, the Calgary Albertan and the Edmonton Journal, to find out what the Liberal press of the country were saying regarding the actions of the Rutherford government. If they wanted the views of an independent paper, he would cite the Toronto Telegram, which said they were glad to see that Alberta had developed a conscience. He was content, he said, to no longer belong to the Liberal party, if this was what Liberalism meant.

CANNOT EXONERATE GOVERNMENT.

"The government could not in all serious cases ask the members to go on recording their votes as they have been doing on something they knew to be wrong. They could not exonerate the government for doing something a private citizen would not be allowed to do."

"This information has got to come," said Mr. Smith, "no matter how long we are here." O'Brien, Socialist, explained that he had refrained the other day from voting, and would continue to do so, unless he saw there was an advantage to be gained for the party he was representing.

Riley made a strong speech in support of the resolution, saying that the house had been trying for a week to get information, and up to the present they had not obtained the information was not forthcoming.

He said that if any member could support the government on this resolution, and go back to his constituency and justify his vote, he would like to know what brand of constituent that member represented. He compared a file from the department of education complete in every particular, to "Bumklo," as he called the Great Waterways files. "Nothing the attorney general has said has suited me," he said, "and I do not believe it will suit the country."

He referred to one little document which showed the unsimulated method in which the files had been conducted. He produced a copy of a receipt from a local bank for a bond of $7,400.00. The receipt, he said, bore no date.

PUFFER'S CONSCIENCE CLEAR.

Puffer, Lacombe, said that to his mind, nothing of importance was missing from the files. "How do you know?" asked Smith.

Puffer continued, saying that the government had been authorized to enter into a contract with (continued on page 7.)

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 23d, 1910.
FROM COAST TO RED DEER.

The C.P.R. line from coast to Red Deer sounds good. The question was discussed in the papers Saturday. Shaughnessy said he had no information to make public regarding the announcement.

Red Deer was never better prepared for such an announcement. The most beautiful, clean and healthy residential town in Alberta, we have other things to boast of also.

We are the most progressive educational centre in Alberta for our size.

We make and ship more cheese than all the rest of Alberta combined.

We ship more creamery butter than any place in Alberta.

We have better dairy stock, Ayrshires and Jerseys, than any district in the province.

We have water works and sewerage. We have electric light and power, we have a splendid hospital service, and a first class fire department, well equipped.

Our municipal service is unexcelled. Our councillors are alert business men, and our commissioners able to give pointers to the rest of the province.

Our lumber and brick industries employ many men and are a source of large revenue to the town.

Our churches, our hotels, our public buildings are all large, well built and commodious.

All we want now is for C.P.R. to build a trans-continental line through Red Deer to the coast, and we will be a city of ten thousand in three or four years.

And it looks as though the C.P.R. was going to build that line.

Consolidation at Holland, Man.

From Report of the Department of Education.

(Reported May 1st, 1907)

It has been the privilege of the energetic and enterprising citizens of Holland and vicinity to test the feasibility and prove the efficiency of consolidation, in Manitoba. The districts of Holland and Dawson, in the municipality of Victoria, were consolidated in 1905, the by-law becoming effective on January 1st, 1906. Four vans were necessary to transport the children, as required by the Act, and contracts for these were let at prices ranging from $8.00 to $11.00 each per week.

During that winter the drivers used their own sleighs, but in the spring specially constructed vans were supplied by the district. During the summer an average of over fifty children were brought to the school from the country daily in these vans, which are all well constructed and comfortable, and which provide shelter from the sun and rain. The drive to and from school proved an attraction for the children.

At the beginning of the winter of 1906, the vans were transferred from wheels to specially constructed runners, and provided with canvas fronts and wooden doors, which made them comfortable for the winter climate. At this time the routes were slightly modified to follow the winter trails, but all families dependent on the vans were still punctually and efficiently served.

With winter came an increase in attendance of children from the country and the average rose to between 60 and 70. The vans were seldom late, on only three occasions during the winter did they fail to make their rounds. One week was lost in the spring at the breaking up of the roads.

The plan has proved of the greatest benefit to the children living in the rural districts, and the school as a whole has gained from that added incentive and enthusiasm that come from larger classes, larger enrolment and fewer pupils coming late. The children from the country have had the advantages of a good graded school. They have been able to attend regularly, and for a longer period during the year. More of their time in the school has been spent in recitation and in receiving instruction, and their progress has been in proportion to these advantages. It was noticed, too, that the children from the country speedily overcame that shyness that attended them while pupils on the rural school.

The expenses have been found to be slightly more than the combined expenses of the two districts under the old system, but the ratepayers believe that the advantages far outweigh the mere trifling of the difference in cost. Farmers who have children attending the school, and who have been able to watch the progress made by their children, confidently affirm that the time a boy will save in obtaining a fair common school education is sufficient to recommend the plan, no matter what the extra cost may be. The school and school life has been made pleasant and attractive for these country children as they never could be in the ordinary country school.

Town Topics, a paper published in Edmonton, speaks of R. B. Bennett as the mysterious, and says "he is like the hero in the melodrama and will soon pan out and become a joke. Such twaddle could only emanate from the pen of a government hireling. If R. B. Bennett, with a couple of speeches and a few quotations, can cause the government forces to become panic stricken and almost put them to rout, what would he be if he wasn't a 'little joker'?" The fact of the matter is that the government is afraid of Bennett, so afraid that even C. W. Cross, the Attorney-General, resigned his portfolio for a time, and shivers in dread of what may come next. And we may, because when Bennett gets through with them there will be nothing left but hair.

Memorial Hospital Annual Meeting

The annual general meeting of the members of the Red Deer Memorial Hospital was held on Thursday evening last in Michener's Hall.

The meeting was held for the purpose of receiving the director's report, financial statement for 1909, appointing new directors and transacting any other business that could be done at this gathering.

There was not a very large attendance but those present were greatly pleased by the excellent showing of the Hospital for the past year. The chair was occupied by the chairman of the Hospital Board, F. H. Tallman, who presented the following report:

CHAIRMAN'S REPORT.
Officers and members of the Red Deer Memorial Hospital and citizens:

Herewith I beg to submit the ninth annual report of the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Red Deer Memorial Hospital.

Our aim as a Board has been to further the interests of the Hospital, to augment its usefulness and to place its finances in a satisfactory condition. That our efforts have met with some measure of success is due largely to the co-operation of the Hospital Ladies Aid and the Alexandra Club, who have labored so nobly and diligently to provide furnishings for the Hospital.

Among many things, too numerous to mention here, the Ladies Aid purchased an operating table which was much needed, and expended in all about $240.00. The Alexandra Club expended about $100 and are purchasing a sterilizer and a writing table for the matron, and a couch. I mention these figures to show you how greatly these ladies have assisted and can assure you that our balance sheet, which shows only a deficit of $72.00 for 1909 against $949.00 for 1908, would not present so satisfactory a picture if it had not been for their zeal and devotion. I am sure I express the feelings of the Board when I extend to them our heartfelt thanks.

Our thanks are due also to our citizens and friends who have so generously donated to the Hospital many useful articles during the year, and to the Town for the continuance of the $500 grant. At the beginning of the year the Board decided, if possible, to make the Hospital self-supporting.

Heretofore it has always been found necessary to canvass our citizens for subscriptions to help out our finances, but as the result of the good foundation work of former Boards of Directors, and the present efficient staff, it was not found necessary to ask our citizens for contributions during 1909. We are most grateful for all voluntary subscriptions and refer you with satisfaction to the detailed statement of our financial standing, which will be read presently by our secretary.

This non-canvassing for subscriptions has, however, placed us in a peculiar position, for according to our by-laws only life members and annual members are eligible to vote. An annual member is defined as one paying at least $10 per year. When the Board decided to make no personal canvass they overlooked this by-law, so it might be well before we proceed to elect our Directors if we gave each citizen present to-night an opportunity to become entitled to vote.

It will not be necessary for me to give a detailed statement of the financial condition of the Hospital, but I would like to call your attention to the fact that, we had a surplus for the year of over $100.

Spring Skin Troubles.

Pimples, Eruptions and "Spotty Complexions."

At this season, scores of people—girls and young women especially—find their faces disfigured by pimples, eruptions, etc. The skin needs attention—needs renovating after the trying time it has passed through during the winter. Just think what it has gone through! You have been out in rain and sleet and snow. You have been at one moment perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood "cool off." You have spent hours of the day indoors at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin—except your face—and gone out into a temperature away below zero. No wonder that, with all these changes, the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention.

Don't forget that the skin has to do work just as any other organ of the body, and if you overwork it, it gives out. Zani-Buk is the remedy. Sooner it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the scaly patches, bright and notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, natural color sinks deep into the tissue, the hard, scaly-like patches are removed. Better color results. The cells of the skin become transparent. The blood beneath is able to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate bloom of health replaces the sallowness, the pallor of disease. Zani-Buk is also of great use in skin injuries and diseases. Eczema, ulcers, chaps, ringworm, acne, yield to its use. For cuts, burns, bruises, children's rashes, etc., it is unequalled, and it is a sure cure for piles. All druggists and stores, at 5¢ box, or Zani-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

this company, and to his mind they had carried out their instructions to the letter. His conscience was perfectly clear in voting for the motion. The government had offered to leave the whole matter in hands of a commission of judges, and this was sufficient for him.

Bennett confined the whole matter to three questions. What were the privileges of the house? had these privileges been violated and what was the remedy or punishment for such violation.

He quoted from high authority to show that the house was entitled to demand the slightest bit of evidence which went to compose the file of any department, in an effort to reach a conclusion upon any matter. That disposed of the first question.

HOUSE HAS RIGHT TO KNOW.

"It is a part of the inherent rights of this house to demand every scrap of evidence. Monday the premier had the effrontery to tell me all the papers were on the table of the house.

"I tell him that is false; it is as false as hell."

"That is a quotation from Shakespeare, Mr. Speaker. 'Mr. Puffer says he is incompetent to judge of these files. Thank heaven there are constituents competent to judge him.' 'What is the remedy for this? The only remedy under the constitution is to vote no confidence in the government. You cannot hide yourself behind a royal commission, because a royal commission cannot punish the offenders; they cannot vote the government. They have only two courses. They can send in the evidence without a report, or they can report that the evidence taken has proved certain things.

This constitutional remedy has been given us since we have had responsible government. It is for us to say here, yes, or no; are we for or against."

No member dare say that these files have not been tampered with; will any member say it? Will the member from Port Saskatchewan say it? Will the member from Lac St. Anne say it? 'How much is there in it?' returned Mr. Gunn.

"There you are, Mr. Speaker, that member is on a par with the member from Leduc. That is the class of statesmanship that is supporting the government."

EVENING SESSION.

Stewart, of Sedgwick, seconded by Holden, Vegreville, introduced his resolution asking for an explanation as to what had become of the $740,000, being the amount of money received from the sale of the Great Waterways bonds over and above the sum of $7,400,000 deposited with the provincial treasurer.

In speaking to the resolution Stewart pointed out that the attorney general had stated that the bonds had been sold to J. P. Morgan and Co., of New York, and after their disposal to that firm the government had no knowledge as to what they were sold for. It had been proven, however, and the government had not denied the statement, that the bonds were afterwards sold on the London market at 110. He thought that the government was holding back something. They certainly knew what the bonds were worth, and if they did not know they were certainly not fulfilling their duty.

In reply to the member from Sedgwick, Attorney General Cross reiterated his statement that the government had no knowledge that the bonds had been sold on the London market. They had been sold to the New York firm, and it was none of the government's business what that firm afterwards sold them for.

Michener, Red Deer, replied, quoting various financial papers to the effect that the bonds had been sold in London at 110. The provincial government officials had been wine and dined by a promoter from Kansas City, whose only capital was $80,000 raised on a promissory note, until at last he had ingratiated himself into their confidence to such an extent that he had secured the credit of the province for his venture. Was it not for the machine which dominated a certain section and a certain number of the members, the government would not remain in power five minutes. It was time that the referendum and recall was instituted, and in some manner force the officers of the government to show wherein the discrepancy lies.

JOHN A. MACDOUGALL.

John A. McDougall, in a short speech, laid considerable stress on the capitalization of the company and the fact that the promoters had little if any fine standing. The government should have watched the sale of the bonds and seen to it that every dollar received was placed to the credit of the treasurer of the province. He quoted figures showing the scale of the bonds and what it would cost the government to redeem them.

ORANGE MARMALADE.

The best recipe known: Use only Seville Oranges and order them from Huskins.

Cut the oranges in halves. Slice the rinds as thin as possible. To every pint of juice and rinds add 2 1/2 pints of cold water. Reserve sufficient out of this liquid to cover the seeds, pulp and inner skin. Let this stand over night, then squeeze through a cloth and add to first part and boil quickly for an hour. The following day weigh the whole, liquid and all, and to every pound add 1 1/4 pounds of granulated sugar. Boil for an hour and bottle.

As the requirement for a small town is very limited, in order to not get overstocked, I am booking orders now, and when I have enough ordered I shall then buy, and supply at once. Phone 08 or leave your orders at store. Price will be right.
